

Ark-AHEAD

Arkansas Association on Higher Education and Disability

is an organization for professionals working with people with disabilities in postsecondary education settings in Arkansas. Ark-AHEAD plays a vital role in the provision of professional development and networking opportunities. We strive to respond to the rapid changes in the law and in "accepted" accommodation practices, the isolation felt by many disability coordinators, and the dual roles that many professionals serve.

Memberships from all postsecondary schools – public, private, two-year, four-year, graduate, and vocational-technical colleges – are invited. Ark-AHEAD members unite in our common needs and concerns in service to students with disabilities.

WHY JOIN?

- < Participate in meetings and workshops
- < Network with professional colleagues
- < Post job announcements, publicize events and seek input on important issues on the association listserv
- < Let your voice be heard on issues of concern to people with disabilities in the higher education setting

Meetings and workshops:

Ark-AHEAD meetings and workshops are held three times annually and provide exposure to both local resources and renowned experts on topics such as disability law, policies and procedures in higher education, and other critical issues in our profession. Membership dues go directly toward efforts to keep the costs down for these quality professional development opportunities.

Networking:

The opportunity to network with colleagues across the state is invaluable. These opportunities help members share ideas, gain insights, and renew the commitment to advocating for students with disabilities on college campuses.

Listserv:

The Board of Ark-AHEAD maintains an organizational listserv. This allows members the opportunity to announce upcoming events, request assistance with a particular issue, and even conduct research on topics related to disability service provision in postsecondary environments. Membership is not required to join the listserv. Please refer to the Ark-AHEAD website for the specific subscription instruction.
